THE PEARL WEARER.

Within the midnight of her hair,
Half hidden in its deepest deeps,
A single peerless, priceless pearl,
All filmy-eyed forever sleeps.
Without the diamond's sparkling eyes,
The ruby's blushes—there it lies!
Modest as the tender Dawn
When her purple veil's withdrawn—
The flower of gems—a lily, cold and pale!
Yet, what doth all avail?
All its beauty, all its grace,
All the honors of its place?
He who plucked it from its bed
In the fair Indian Ocean,
Lieth, without life or motion,
In his earthly dwelling—dead!
And his children, one by one,
When they look upon the sun,
Curse the toil by which he drew
The treasure from its bed of blue.
Gentle bride, no longer wear
In the night black, odorous hair
Such a spoil? It is not fit
That a tender soul should sit
Under such accursed gem.
What need'st thou a diadem?
Thou, within whose Eastern eyes
Thought, starry genius lies?
Thou, whom Beauty has arrayed—
Thou, whom Love and Truth have made
Beautiful?—in whom we trace
Woman's softness, angel's grace—
All we hope for, all that crowns
Upon us in our haunted dreams!
O, sweet lady! cast aside,
With a gentle, noble pride,
All to sin or pain allied.
Let the wild-eyed conqueror wear
The bloody laurel in his hair;
Let the black and smoky vine
Round the drinker's temples twine;
Let the slave-begotten gold
Weigh on bosoms hard and cold;
But be thou forever known
By thy natural light alone!

BARRY CORNWALL.

How Peebles Asked the Old Man.

BY JOHN QUILL.

Peebles had just asked Mr. Merriweather's daughter if she would give him a lift out of bachelordom, and she had said "yes." It therefore became absolutely necessary to get the old man's permission, so, as Peebles said, that arrangements might be made for hopping the conjugal twig.

Peebles said he'd rather pop the interrogatory to all of old Merriweather's daughters, and his sisters, and his female cousin, and his aunt Hannah in the country, and the whole of his female relations than ask old Merriweather. But it had to be done, and so he sat down and studied out a speech which he was going to disgorge to old Merriweather the very first chance he got to shy it at him. So Peebles dropped in on him one Sunday evening, when all the family had meandered around to class-meeting, and found him doing a sum in beer measure, trying to calculate the exact number of quarts his interior could hold without blowing the head off of it, any way.

"How are you, Peeb?" said old Merriweather, as Peebles walked in as white as a piece of chalk, and trembling as if he had swallowed a condensed earthquake. Peebles was afraid to answer, because he wasn't sure about that speech. He knew he had to keep his grip on it while he had it there, or it would slip away from him quicker than an oiled eel through an augur hole. So he blurted right out.

"Mr. Merriweather, sir: Perhaps it may not be unknown to you, sir, that during an extended period of some five years, I have been busily engaged in the prosecution of a commercial enterprise—"

"Is that so, and keepin' it secret all the time, while I thought you was tendin' store. Well, by George, you're one of 'em, now, ain't you?"

Peebles had to begin all over again, to get the run of it.

"Mr. Merriweather, sir: Perhaps it may not be unknown to you that during an extended period of some five years, I have been engaged in the prosecution of a commercial enterprise, with a determination to procure a sufficient maintenance—"

"Sit down, Peeb, and help yourself to beer. Don't stand there holding your hat like a blind beggar with the paralysis. What's the matter with you, any way? I never seen you behave yourself so in all my born days."

Peebles was knocked out again, and had to wander back and take a fresh start.

"Mr. Merriweather, sir: It may not be unknown to you that during an extended period of some five years, I have been engaged in the prosecution of a commercial enterprise, with the determination to procure a sufficient maintenance—"

"A which-ance?" asked old Merriweather; but Peebles held on to the last word as if it was his only chance, and went on:

"In the hope that some day I might enter wedlock, and bestow my earthly possessions upon one whom I could call my own. I have been a lonely man, sir, and have felt that it is not good for man to be alone; therefore—"

"Neither is it, Peebles; and I'm all-fired glad you dropped in. How's the old man?"

"Mr. Merriweather, sir," said Peebles, in despairing confusion, raising his voice to a yell, "it may not be unknown to you that, during an extended period of a lonely man, I have been engaged to enter wedlock, and bestow all my commercial enterprise on one whom I could procure a determination to be good for a sufficient possessions—no, I mean—that is—that Mr. Merriweather, sir, it may not be unknown—"

"And then again it may. Look here, Peebles, you'd better lay down and take something warm: you ain't well."

Peebles, sweating like a four-year-old colt, went in again:

"Mr. Merriweather, sir: It may not be lonely for you to prosecute me whom you can call a friend for commercial maintenance, but—but—oh, dang it—Mr. Merriweather; sir—it—"

"Oh, Peebles, you talk as wildly as a jackass. I never see a more first-class idiot in the whole course of my life. What's the matter with you, any how?"

"Mr. Merriweather, sir," said Peebles, in an agony of bewilderment, "it may not be unknown that you prosecuted a lonely man who is not good for a commercial period of wedlock for some five years—but—"

"See here, Mr. Peebles, you're drunk, and if you can't behave better than that you'd better leave. If you don't I'll chuck you out, or I'm a Dutchman."

"Mr. Merriweather, sir," said Peebles, frantic with despair, "it may not be unknown to you, that my earthly possessions are engaged to enter wedlock five years with a sufficiently lonely man who is not good for a commercial maintenance—"

"The bloody deuce he isn't. Now you just git up and git, old hoss, or I'll knock what little brains out of you you've got left."

With that old Merriweather took Peebles by the shirt collar and the part of his pants that wears our first if he sits down much, and shot him into the street as if he had just run against a locomotive going at the rate of forty miles an hour. Before old Merriweather had a chance to shut the front door Peebles collected his legs and one thing another that were lying around on the pavement, and arranged himself in a vertical position, and yelled out:

"Mr. Merriweather, sir: It may not be unknown to you—" which made the old man so wretched mad that he went out and set a bull terrier on Peebles before he had a chance to lift a brogan, and there was a scientific dog fight, with odds in favor of the dog, until they got to the fence, and even then Peebles would have carried bull-terrier home, gripped like a clamp on to his leg, if it hadn't been that the meat was too tender, and the dog feeling certain that something or other must eventually give way, held on until he got his chop off of Peebles's calf, and Peebles went home half a pound lighter, while Merriweather asserts, to this day, that they had to draw all the dog's teeth to get the flesh out of his mouth, "for he had an awful holt for such a small animal."

Of course Merriweather's daughter heard about it, and she was so mad that she never gave the old man any peace until he went around the next day to see Peebles about it. Peebles looked pale as a ghost from loss of blood and beef, and he had a whole piece of muslin wrapped around his off leg. Merriweather said:

"Peeb, I'm sorry about that muss last night, but if you didn't behave like a raving maniac, I'm a loafer. I never see such a deliberate ass since I was born. What's the meaning of it, any way?"

"I was only trying to ask you to let me marry your daughter," groaned Peebles.

"Great—what? You didn't mean to say—well, I hope I may be shot. Well, if you ain't a regular old wooden headed idiot—I thought your mind was wandering. Why didn't you say it right out? Why of course you can have her. I am glad to get rid of her. Take her, my boy; go it, go it, and I'll throw a lot of first-class blessins into the bargain."

And Peebles looked ruefully at his defective leg and wished he had not been such a fool, but he went out and married the girl, and lived happily with her for about two months, and, at the end of that time, he told a confidential friend that he would willingly take more trouble and undergo a million more dog bites to get rid of her.

ABOUT DRIVING MULES.—Most every one is familiar with the mode of driving (?) a drove of young mules. It is on the inverse system. The drover buys up from fifty to a hundred young, unbroken mules, and mounted on a brood mare, they follow after the same as do sheep the bellwether of a flock. For a great many years and old trader, familiarly called "Old Sol"—who if ever possessed of any other patronymic, had probably forgotten the fact—was in the habit of bringing in from the West a drove of the long-eared animals and disposing of them to the farmers of South Jersey. The last business visit to that section was about the time the turnpike mania raged, and a single bar was stretched across nearly every public road to pass beyond which required the payment of:

For every carriage, sleigh, or sled drawn by one beast, one and a half cts. per mile.

For every additional beast, one and a half cents.

For every dozen calves, sheep, or hogs, two cents.

For every dozen of horses, mules, or cattle, six cents.

"Old Sol" had passed something like two dozen of these bars on his way from Canada to Bridgeton, paying the legal exaction at each under protest and in very profane language. Not having disposed of a single mule, and drawing nigh the end of a long journey, he was beginning to suffer from a drouth in his pocket, and to his dismay, saw the inevitable bar once more before him. Looking around and finding his mules were leisurely browsing along the road some two or three hundred yards behind, he hurried up his pace to the gate, paid a single toll for the horse he was riding, and made a special request of the gate keeper to shut it up after him and stop those darned mules which had been following him two or three miles.

"Certainly," said the accommodating keeper, who had it locked in less time than it takes to tell it.

"Old Sol" started off again on a brisk canter, which his mules soon initated, and as they came to the gate bar went over it in one, two, and three order, to the astonishment of the keeper, who saw the point of the joke in a few moments after, and acknowledged himself "dead beat."

☞Act well your part in this life.

The Artificial Propagation of Fish.

WHAT HAS BEEN AND CAN BE DONE.

The States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut have appointed fish commissioners and have made appropriations for improving the rivers running through these States, so that salmon, brook trout, and shad may ascend them to their sources and descend again at will to the ocean, by means of fishways built over and around all falls and dams that now impede their passage. It is also intended to restock the rivers with these fish, both by natural and artificial propagation. The commissioners of Massachusetts and New Hampshire have already erected fishways over the dams and falls of the Merrimac, and they planted last year in its head waters a number of thousand salmon spawn, obtained by Dr. Fletcher, of Concord, from salmon taken in the waters of New Brunswick and artificially impregnated. About 90 per cent. of them hatched, and the young salmon are now in the head waters of the river, and will descend in the spring to the ocean, over the fishways, and return in the fall, weighing from five to seven pounds each. It is a well known fact that salmon and shad always return to the same river and spawning grounds where they were hatched, to deposit their ova. Dr. Fletcher went to New Brunswick last fall for another crop of spawn for the commissioners to plant in the winter, and he is expected to return in due time with a few hundred thousand ova—enough to give this splendid fish a good start in the Merrimack and its tributaries. J. S. Robinson, of Meredith Village, New Hampshire, writes to me that he has 40,000 salmon spawn in his hatching boxes, taken and fecundated artificially, that show the young fish in embryo very plainly, and these he will probably place in the Merrimack next summer. He has also 100,000 lake trout spawn with embryotic fish. The commissioners will build fishways on the Connecticut, Saco, and other rivers of New England next year, preparatory to stocking them with salmon, trout and shad, the no plus ultra of the sportsmen as well. This is the first attempt in this country to hatch salmon artificially, and restock our rivers with them, but it has been practiced in Europe since 1852, and of late with great success; so that salmon are now taken by the thousand tons where before they took but a few hundred fish annually. The spawn of the salmon has been shipped to Australia, a journey of 6,000 miles, with success.

The cultivation of brook trout artificially has been practiced in this country for several years, as well as in Europe, with complete success. The writer of this article was amongst the first to experiment here, and he has hatched as high as 99½ per cent. of all the spawn taken from a trout. Seth Green, the Mumford, N. Y., fish culturist, hatched over 600,000 last spring, and will hatch at least 1,000,000 this spring. Ponds and streams have been stocked with them all over the country, and in some cases they have grown to weigh two pounds in three years. Brook trout that hatch in the winter lay their first crop of spawn a year from the next fall, each female producing about three hundred eggs and doubling in number yearly until they reach about 6,000. Salmon begin spawning at the same age and time, and produce from 5,000 to 20,000 eggs, according to the age and size of the female. When these fish are spawned and artificially impregnated at the proper time, nearly all the ova hatch, and if kept in the hatching-boxes until they commence to feed in the spring, and are then turned into the stream, they will take care of themselves. In this way the number of fish can be increased a hundred fold annually in each river, beyond the natural increase, till the waters are literally filled with them.

Last June, Mr. Seth Green, one of the best propagators of brook trout in this country, proposed to the fish commissioners of the previously mentioned States to go to Holyoke, the highest point on the Connecticut river to which shad ascend, and try at his own expense the experiment of hatching shad artificially. To this they readily gave assent. On the 25th of that month Mr. Green took his first spawn and found to his utter amazement that each female shad produced from 50,000 to 100,000 ova, according to the size of the fish manipulated. He found that these ova were quite small, say about the size of a No. 8 shot, and that they increased in thirty minutes after impregnation to the size of No. 4 shot, and remained of that size until they hatched. In the practiced hands of Mr. Green the spawn were easily procured, but when he came to place them in the hatching boxes previously prepared like his own for hatching trout, he found himself at bay. He could do nothing with them as they were so light that they floated off with the slightest current, and when placed where there was no current, they all died. He experimented about two weeks before he succeeded in hatching them to any extent. Finally he invented the following form of box and manner of placing them in the water, in which the spawn hatched to perfection, to his great relief and unbounded delight. This box was two feet long, 15 inches wide and 15 inches deep, with a fine wire cloth nailed on the bottom, and a board 4 feet long and 4 inches wide nailed on each side of the box edgewise for floats, about 2 inches from the top at the lower end of the box, and six inches from the top of the upper end. He placed this box in the river where the current ran about 2 miles an hour, anchored it with cords fastened to the floats. This placed the wire cloth on the bottom of the box at an angle of about thirty degrees against the current, and the water flowing through the cloth struck against the lower end of the box slanting upwards and backwards which gave the water a roll upwards and over toward the upper end of the box.—This current lifted the ova from the wire bottom and suspended them in the water and kept them constantly agitated until they hatched.

He put from 50,000 to 100,000 spawn in a box at a time and hatched as many as 999 in a thousand! In this manner he hatched from 2,000,000 to 6,000,000 daily and continued to do so until he turned over 40,000,000 young shad into the river! The spawn hatched in 76 degrees of temperature in fifty hours; he considered this the best temperature to hatch them. The young shad when hatched are three-eighths of an inch long with the egg attached to the umbilical cord, on which they live for three days. After this they seek their own food and take to the middle of the river, seemingly to avoid the small fishes near the shore, and head up stream, but gradually falling back with the current toward the ocean. After learning this fact he placed the young fry as fast as hatched in the middle of the river to take care of themselves. Mr. Green found no female shad under two years old in the river, but males one year which were ten inches long, though quite slim. The two-years old females weighed about two pounds each, and produced about 50,000 ova. Those three years old weighed three and a half pounds, while those four years old weighed six pounds and furnished 100,000 spawn. The commissioners placed some of these spawn in the upper waters of the Connecticut, carrying them in bottles of water on the cars, and finding that some of them hatched on the way.

Is not this subject of sufficient magnitude and importance to induce all the disciples of Sir Izaak and all lovers of good fish, to urge its attention upon the respective Legislatures, and secure if possible their immediate action?

"Meet Gertrude."

The Selma Messenger tells the following capital story as genuine and authentic:

Among the most enterprising and industrious merchants of Selma is one whom we will call Smith, principally because it isn't his name, who is blessed with a most exemplary wife in all respects save one—she is of rather a jealous disposition. Mr. Smith has been of late very much engrossed in his business, and has often consumed his evenings over his ledger instead of in the bosom of his family, as has been his custom for years. In reply to the queries of Mrs. Smith on the subject, he would always say that he was employed in his business. She did not understand how business could take up so much of his time, and her suspicions were aroused that all was not right. Visions of hours spent by her husband in other female society than her own haunted her mind, and she made an inward vow to watch him and see for herself.

Soon after arriving at this resolution a telegram arrived for her husband and was sent to his office, which was closed, as he had gone to his supper. The carrier went to his house and delivered it to the servant at the door. The gentleman not having arrived, it was handed to his wife, who with true feminine curiosity, read it. It was plain and short:

MONTGOMERY, Dec.—, 1867.
Mr. SMITH:—Meet Gertrude tonight.

Here was a horrible confirmation of her worst fears. Controlling herself as best she could, she laid the dispatch by his plate. He came in, read it, and said "he would have to go down after supper, and might not be back till late." He hurried through his meal, took his hat, and walked hurriedly down the street. Before he had turned the corner his wife was following him, swiftly and noiselessly: He went straight on, she close behind, until he reached the wharf.

After an apparent inspection of the surroundings, he stepped down the hill and took a seat in the office of the "Magnolia." His wife took a position where she could see him through the glass door, and waited for the finale—which was expected in the shape of the Gertrude whom her faithless spouse was to meet. Time dragged on wearily, and the lady became drowsy and at last fell into a doze, from which she was aroused by the shrill whistle of an approaching steamer.—Nearer and nearer she came, and as she rounded to, the name Gertrude, in large, brightly painted letters, met the view of the jealous wife, and a Stentorian voice, inquiring if Smith was on hand, completed her awakening.

At a glance the position was realized, and the poor woman could have cried for vexation as she saw her husband and another gentleman hurriedly transacting some business within a few feet of her. At that moment a tipsy negro came stumbling along, and seeing a woman's dress half hidden among the bales and boxes of merchandise, seized her, exclaiming: "Come out ob dar, ole gal!" Her scream of terror brought her husband to the scene, whose astonishment may be imagined. She fell into his arms, with a hysterical burst of sobs, and explanations ensued.

The party returned to their home in a hack, and somebody's head was on somebody's bosom all the way.—Since that time, all that Smith has to do to avert a scolding, is to insinuate that he will "meet Gertrude."

A Wedding Night Shirt.

It wasn't hardly the fair thing the boys did to Joe Thompson the night he was married, but the temptation was too irresistible. They couldn't have helped it to have saved their lives. I'll tell you how it was.

Joe was about the most fancy dressing buck in the town—ever nice and particular, a perfect Miss Nancy in manners, always putting on airs, and more dainty and modest than a girl.—Well, when his wedding night came he was dressed trunk empty, and his pants expecially fitted him as if they had been moulds and his legs candles, and run into them. Tight was no name for them. Their set was immense, and he was proud as half a dozen peacocks.

"Aren't they nice, boys?" he asked of the two who were to be groomsmen and see that he threw himself away in the most approved fashion.

"Stunning! Gorgeous!" replied Tom Bonnet. "Never saw anything equal to them. But, I say, Joe, aren't they just the least tight? It strikes me that you will have some difficulty in bending—won't you?

"Pshaw, no! They are as easy as an old glove. See!"

To prove the matter he bent down so as to touch his patent leathers, when crack! crack! followed like the twin reports of a revolver.

"Thunder!" exclaimed Joe as he clasped his hands behind and found a rent in the cassimere from stem to stern. "Thunder! the pants have burst and what shall I do?"

"I should rather think they had," answered Tom, getting purple in the face as he endeavored to control his laughter. "But there is no time to get another pair. It only wants half an hour to the standing up time, and we have got a mile to go. Carriage waiting too."

"What shall I do?—what shall I do?"

"I'll tell you what, Joe, if mine would fit you you should have them and welcome, but they are about a mile too big—would set like a shirt on a bean pole. I see no way but to have them mended."

"Who can I get to do it, Tom?"

"Well, I am something of a tailor, and can fix them so they won't show. Hold on a minute, and I'll get a needle and thread."

"Can you? May Heaven bless you!"

"Off with your coat," continued Tom, as he came back.

"Now lay yourself on the bed and I will fix you in short order."

The command was obeyed—the pants mended—the coat tails were carefully pinned over so as to conceal the "distress for rent," and all went merry as a marriage bell, until Joe followed his blushing bride to the nuptial couch.

There was only a dim light in the room but it enabled Joe, as he glanced bashfully around, to see the sweetest face in the world, the rosy cheeks and ripe lips, the lovely and loving blue eyes, and the golden curls just peeping from out the snowy sheets, and he hastened to disrobe himself. Off came coat, vest, fancy necktie and collar, boots and socks in hurry; but some how the pants stuck. The more he tried, the more they wouldn't come, and he tugged vainly for half an hour.

"Thunder!" muttered Joe.

"What is the matter dear?" came in the softest accents from the bed, where somebody was wondering if he ever was going to her arms.

It was a moment of desperation—Joe was entirely overcome by the situation, and forgetting his accustomed bashfulness blurted out:

"Molly, that cursed Tom Bennett has sewed my pants, drawers, shirt and under shirt altogether!"

"It is too bad. Wait a moment, dear."

A little stockingless foot peeped out, then a ruffled night dress, the lamp was lighted, a pair of scissors found, and Joe released. Although Joe denies it Tom Bonnet swears that his shirt was of the shortest possible length, reasoning a posteriori!

"How so?"

"Why, does it not say, 'If thine ox or thine ass fall into a pit on the Sabbath-day, thou shalt pull him out?' Now, Samuel, of what use would it be to pull him out if he have no food to eat?"

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } EDITORS.

OUR CANDIDATES:

FOR PRESIDENT,

U. S. GRANT.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

A. G. CURTIN.

FOR AUDITOR GENERAL,

GEN. JOHN F. HARTRANFT,

OF MONTGOMERY COUNTY.

FOR SURVEYOR GENERAL,

COL. JACOB M. CAMPBELL,

OF CAMBRIA COUNTY.

☞Every State represented in the Republican National Convention will present a Vice Presidential aspirant.

☞Attorney General Stanberry resigned his position in the Cabinet in order to serve the President as counsel during the impeachment trial. Mr. Stanberry was an old line Whig.

☞The Lancaster County Republicans voted on the 7th inst., on the Presidential question with this result: For President, Gen. Grant received the unanimous vote polled 6,920. For Vice President, the vote stood—Curtin 3,899; Geary 1654; Hamlin 376; Colfax 321; Grow 195.

Impeachment.

The trial of the President has been postponed until Monday next—then perhaps further delay will be asked for by the President's counsel. The trial when commenced will last for several weeks. The "knowing ones" in Washington think the President will be convicted.

Our State Ticket.

General Hartranft and Colonel Campbell have been re-nominated. Never before were two office-holders more highly complimented. They were both good men in the field in the struggle against the rebels, and they have proved themselves good men in civil office. They are the right kind of men for office at all times—honest, capable and worthy.

The New Hampshire Election.

The New Hampshire election for Governor and Legislators, took place on Wednesday last. For weeks and months both parties have been hard at work to carry the State. The result is a victory for the Republicans—they carry the State by about three thousand majority for their candidate for Governor, and a large majority of the members to the Legislature. Last year the Republicans carried the State by a majority of two or three hundred more than this year.

Our State Convention.

The Union Republican State Convention held in Philadelphia last week was full, every county being represented, and largely attended by outsiders. The ticket nominated gives very general satisfaction—indeed there was no opposition at all to Hartranft and Campbell. Grant and Curtin were declared the choice of the party of the State for President and Vice President. The opposition to Curtin was made principally by the extreme Radicals of the party. On the suffrage question the action of the Convention harmonizes with the majority vote in the Legislature. With the exception of the selection of the delegates to the Chicago Convention, the proceedings of the Convention appears to be generally approved by the party in every part of the State. Where delegates have been chosen from counties contrary to the expressed will of local action, the delegates of such Congressional districts to the State Convention must take the responsibility of the repudiation. The Convention in appointing delegates, could act only as advised by delegates from Congressional districts.

See the proceedings of the Convention.

THE campaign for '68 has now about opened. The candidates for the State offices, of both parties, are now in the field. The candidates for President and Vice President will soon follow. Grant is sure to be the nominee in opposition to the candidate of the so-called Democracy. For Vice President, Curtin may be the nominee—he would be sure to be if the choice could be left with Pennsylvania alone—but every State has a candidate, and a majority of delegates must rule. We can only hope for the nomination of Curtin. With Grant, Curtin, Hartranft and Campbell as our candidates, who could doubt a brilliant victory for the Union cause in this State. Now is the time to prepare for the contest. The victory will not be easily won. Harmony in the party is an important step to victory. Every vote counts one—and fifty ones may carry the State. A selfish partisan feeling, local and general, must be buried, if success is to be counted on as at all possible or certain. We shall know no faction during the campaign. Every friend and supporter of our candidates shall be recognized as in good standing in the party. Strength is what the party will most need, and to secure it for the party we shall use every honorable means. United we stand, divided we fall.

Republican State Convention.

Immense Attendance.---Hartranft and Campbell Renominated for Re-election! ---The Convention Declares for Grant and Curtin!

PHILADELPHIA, March 11, 1868.

The Republican State Convention assembled at the Academy of Music at ten o'clock to-day, the attendance being very large.

The Convention was called to order by Col. F. Jordan, Chairman of the State Central Committee, who delivered the following

ADDRESS

Gentlemen of the Convention and Fellow-Citizens:—We, and our co-workers, for the last seven long years have been fighting the great battles of liberty and humanity; not only for this country, and for our day, but for the whole world, and for all time. Sometimes on the battle field, and sometimes at the ballot-box; but however the scenes of conflict may have changed, the great principles involved have ever been and yet are essentially the same. Much blood has been shed, and many trials and sacrifices endured; and thank God, many triumphs achieved.—But the history of the eventful past, and the grave duties and responsibilities of the present, alike assures us that "the end is not yet." The great conflict between good and evil, right and wrong, freedom and slavery, is eternal; and having put our hands to the plow, we can but press onward to the fulfillment of our mission, until the thorough suppression of rebellion, and the complete reconstruction of the rebel States are accomplished facts; and until the rights of all men are established on the immutable foundations of universal liberty and impartial justice.—In our past struggles we have met and overcome all conceivable dangerous obstructions. We have encountered perils at home and abroad, by land and sea, and last but not least, perils from false brethren. But through the courage and fidelity of our soldiers, the patriotic devotion and endurance of our people, and the firmness, wisdom and loyalty of our national Congress, we have thus far triumphed over all our foes. The House has recently given renewed evidence of courage and fidelity, and every loyal man expects the Senate to do its duty.

Inspired by the past victories we have made the high resolve, "That the nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom; and that the government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth." By the continued blessing of the Almighty we shall repeat and increase our triumphs, until the great and fundamental principles shall be established and perpetuated, that the majority shall rule, and that this great and free republic shall be governed by those, and those only, who are faithful to her national unity, and loyal to her invincible flag.

Many of our gallant rank and file are not with us to-day, and not a few of our noblest and purest leaders have fallen in the strife; but such is the inevitable lot in all warfare. Men die, but principles are eternal. Let us, in the light of these convictions and responsibilities, take counsel together, and in faith and in wisdom choose other standard bearers, and if, as indicated by the signs of the times, the lot should fall on that modest patriot and hero, General "Unconditional Surrender" Grant, it will be a pledge to the world, "known and read of all men," that we mean "forthwith to move on the enemy's works," and that we "will fight it outon this line, if it takes all summer."

Congratulating you upon the members, character and enthusiasm with which you have come up to renew the conflict, and invoking the spirit of wisdom, patriotism and harmony on all your deliberations, I now perform my last official act as chairman of the State Committee, by calling this convention to order.

At the conclusion of Col. Jordan's remarks, the Convention proceeded to organize temporarily. Col. B. F. Mann was elected Chairman, with the usual complement of Vice Presidents and Secretaries.

Gen. Lemuel Todd, of Cumberland County, was elected permanent chairman. He, in a speech of some length, reviewed the present condition of national affairs, and intimated that the preferences of the convention for the Presidential offices had centered upon Gen. U. S. Grant and A. G. Curtin.

After being regularly organized, the Convention proceeded to a ballot as a means of ascertaining the preferences of members of candidates for President and Vice President of the United States.

The Convention declared for Grant unanimously. For Vice President, A. G. Curtin received 109 votes; Benj. F. Wade 22; Edwin M. Stanton 1.

The present State officers, Hartranft and Campbell, were unanimously nominated for re-election to the offices of Auditor General and Surveyor General.

ELECTORS AT LARGE.

Mr. Swoope, from the committee appointed on that subject, recommended the following gentlemen as

Electors at Large:

G. Morrison Coates, Philadelphia, and Thomas M. Marshall, from Allegheny county.

The same committee recommended the following gentlemen as the

DELEGATES AT LARGE:

James H. Orne and John W. Forney, of Philadelphia; Gen. Harry White, Indiana county, E. R. Meyer, from Bradford county.

ALTERNATES.

J. W. Blanchard, Lawrence county; Thos. Cochran, York, Linn Bartholomew, Schuylkill, and W. Lilly, Carbon.

The nominations of the committee were ratified.

THE PLATFORM.

Thos. E. Cochran, from the Committee on Resolutions, then reported the following Resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, viz:

Resolved, That the great Republican party of America—without which the rebellion against the Government would have consumated the division of the Union, and perpetuated human slavery, with the aid, comfort and full approval of the present Democratic party—is in the fore front of another peril and another trial. Electing its candidate for President in 1860, and re-electing him in 1864, it is now called upon to decide whether all the sacrifices of blood and treasure have not only been in vain, but were simply contributions for the restoration of treason under the influence of a man who, clothed with the confidence of his country, is prevented from overthrowing the Government solely by the wise and patriotic stand taken by a loyal Congress.

Resolved, That we add our voice to the loud acclaim in favor of Ulysses S. Grant as the Republican candidate for President of the United States and in so doing we feel that we are not simply responding to the wishes of our constituents, or helping to pay a portion of the debt we owe to that great soldier, but that we are preparing the way for that substantial triumph which while perpetuating the Republican party, preserves and perpetuates the Republican creeds.

Resolved, That we earnestly call upon the Senate of the United States, sitting as a court of impeachment, to proceed without fear, favor or affection. And that the people of Pennsylvania will stand by and maintain the just judgment of the law.

Resolved, That the soldiers and sailors of the Union who fought and conquered armed rebellion in the field, and stand true to the principles which they vindicated and the flag which floated over them and led them to victory, are entitled to the undying gratitude of all loyal people. And as they saved the country by their trials, sufferings and sacrifices they have considerable claims to the highest honors of the nation.

Resolved, That we tender our most cordial thanks to the Hon. Edwin M. Stanton for the firmness, courage, and patriotism with which he has maintained the majesty of the law and the rights of the people against the attempted invasions of a faithless Executive and his purchased instruments.

Resolved, That as experience is alike the best instructor of men and nations, so the experience of the rebellion has given us renewed confidence in the pledges and precepts of the Declaration of Independence, and that with these as our guiding stars, the Republican party must always succeed.

Resolved, That the purity of the ballot-box should be carefully guarded as of vital importance to the best interests of the country, and that this Convention deem a just and impartial registry law to be necessary to protect us from the astounding frauds which have heretofore been perpetrated.

Resolved, That no contrast so eloquent could be presented as that between the loud professions of Andrew Johnson and the silent professions of Ulysses S. Grant, that as the one deals in promises to deceive, the other deals in acts that convince; and that while Johnson has fallen rapidly away from his many voluntary covenants, Grant has accepted equal justice and radical Republicanism as a part alike of conscience and of duty.

Resolved, That we cordially endorse the administration of State affairs by Gov. John W. Geary, in which he has proved himself efficient in the cabinet as in the field, an able and successful statesman since the war, as he was an able and successful general during the war; and he merits the confidence of the people of Pennsylvania, and we pledge him the continued support of the Republican party of the State.

Resolved, That the public debt, incurred for the purpose of preserving the existence of the nation, is a sacred obligation, binding the people to its payment in the utmost good faith, and to the full extent of its legal requirements; and that the greatest prudence, judgment, and skill are requisite, and should, as far as attainable, be employed at once to maintain the public faith, and credit, and render the burden, of which no loyal citizen should complain, as light as practicable upon the productive industry of the country and the wages and proceeds of labor.

Resolved, That it is the dictate of the soundest policy, as well as of the greatest wisdom, that the domestic industry of the country should be sustained and protected against foreign competition by adequate tariff laws, and that in whatever particulars the existing laws on the subject are defective, they should be amended and made efficient for that purpose, as well as for the purpose of raising of revenue for the Government.

Resolved, That by the election of General Grant to the Presidency all domestic dissensions and factious opposition to the complete reconstruction of the Union on the firm foundations laid by wise and judicious legislation of Congress, will be immediately suppressed and harmony and good feeling restored, settled relations of business established, and the revival and improvement of all the disturbed sources of national wealth and prosperity will be secured when it is once made manifest that the people of this country are firmly fixed in their determination that the fruits of the late bloody and obstinate struggle shall not be lost, and that the factious and rebellious resistance to the laws shall be as effectually overthrown as under the military hostility which attempted to subvert the government by savage cruelty, rapine and murder.

Resolved, That Pennsylvania proudly tenders to the loyal people of the Union Hon. Andrew G. Curtin, her great war Governor and the soldiers' friend.

Resolved, That every American citizen, whether by birth or adoption, is entitled to the protection of the nation and its flag, and while it is incumbent on the Government to initiate negotiations for the establishment of an international law of expatriation, recognizing naturalization by one nation as terminating the allegiance due to another, and conferring all rights of citizenship, it is no less its duty to vindicate its people from all charges of oppression or interference at home and abroad, when in the legitimate and peaceful exercise of their legal and personal rights.

Resolved, That in Gen. John F. Hartranft and Col. Jacob M. Campbell, our nominees for reelection to the important State offices of Auditor General and Surveyor General, we recognize brave soldiers who led and shared with gallant "boys in blue," in the sanguinary strife against rebels in arms, and who have since proved themselves to be competent, faithful and upright officers in time of peace; and we confidently commend them to the suffrages of a people who have not forgotten to be grateful to the defenders of the life of the nation and who love to honor those who exposed themselves, in toil and trial, in camp and bivouac, on the weary march, and the imminent front of battle, that the people might be safe, and the country free and united.

The committee also reported the following resolution:

Resolved, That the delegates from Pennsylvania to the National Republican Convention, to be held in Chicago in the ensuing month of May, be and they are hereby instructed to cast their vote as a unit through the chairman in favor of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant for President, and Andrew G. Curtin, for Vice President, they being the distinctly declared choice of the people of this State for those positions, and that the right of substitution for absent delegates shall be solely with the delegation from the State.

This resolution led to a lengthy discussion. Finally the yeas and nays were called and the resolution was adopted by yeas 89, nays 40.

Mr. McClure then offered the following resolution, viz:

That a committee of one from each Congressional district be appointed by the Chair to report, for the approval of this convention, delegates to the Republican National Convention and electors for the State; and that said committee be instructed to accept district delegates already chosen by action of the district, who will, in good faith, and by their cordial, earnest effort, carry out the instructions of the Republican people of Pennsylvania in Chicago, as expressed so overwhelmingly by the convention.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 85 yeas to 47 nays.

Mr. Blanchard, of Centre county, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Chairman of the State Central Committee for the coming campaign be selected by the president of this convention, and the members of said committee shall consist of one from each county except Philadelphia, which shall have sixteen; Allegheny, Lancaster and Berks each two members, who shall be selected by the president of the Convention from names recommended and nominated by the delegates.

The resolution was adopted.

The protest was laid on the table, and the Convention adjourned sine die.

☞The money-order system of the Postoffice Department has not only proved to be a success as far as public convenience is concerned, but also as a source of revenue to the Government. The Washington office issues and pays about one thousand orders per month, making a total of $25,000 paid out of this office monthly. The profits derived from this branch of the Post-office Department in the United States amounts to $25,000 annually.

Hear the "Soldiers' Friend."

Andrew G. Curtin makes a Speech before a State Mass Meeting.

Mayor M'Michael President of the meeting, attempted to speak, but was interrupted by "three cheers for Andy Curtin," which were quickly given and repeated. The Mayor finally said: Fellow-citizens, after such an exhibition it would be unbecoming in me to introduce to you Gov. Curtin.

Order having been comparatively restored, Governor Curtin spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—I could scarcely lay claim to the ordinary emotions of a man did I fail to feel complimented by such a reception as that which you have so graciously extended to me; and indeed I feel that I have been highly complimented by the action of the convention of the Republican party of Pennsylvania which met in this city during the present week.

Having accepted the invitation extended to me, I am here to-night to acknowledge my appreciation of the partiality of that convention towards myself. It may not be inappropriate for me to remark that it was not long anticipated that the Republican party of the State of Pennsylvania, at the first opportunity, would give fitting expression to the grateful sentiments which swell up from the hearts of this people towards the greatest soldier of the age, and would nominate General Grant for the Presidency.

The action of the convention in this particular finds a prompt and cordial response in the head and heart of every loyal citizen of Pennsylvania, and it only requires the usual formula of conventional State nominations, and the action of the National Convention of this great party, to place Gen. Grant before the people, and then the formula of an election to place him in the Presidential chair. (Applause.) It is a source of much gratification to me personally to know that that party has, with so much unanimity, responded to the popular demand by nominating a man toward whom public sentiment all over the loyal part of this Republic pointed so steadily.

So far as concerning the nomination for the Vice Presidency, I have only to say that the importance and value of the distinguished honor cannot be overestimated by me, when I reflect that it comes from a convention properly constituted, and which represents the real sentiments of the State and of the great party that has ever been faithful to the Government in all its struggles for life.

I know very well that when in her full measure of dignity and power Pennsylvania presents the name of one of her citizens at the National Convention her voice will be respected. But if he whose name they have been pleased to present in this instance should fail to be nominated by the National Convention, he will be found, as heretofore, working faithfully with those who work for the good and virthous and loyal and true—for the nominees of the convention. (Great applause)

My friends, permit me to say I have never pretended to be in advance of public opinion, knowing that I have only been the representative man of an educated public sentiment. Connected with the Republican party on its first organization, I have ever identified myself with its progress. I have adhered to its principles, advocated the election of its standard bearers, and marched with the public sentiment of that party, step by step. In its infancy, I watched that great party struggling with the great idea of human freedom; and I stood by it in its struggle when whole thousands of the best of our people went down to death to maintain our Government, and to purify it, and when slavery and treason were crushed beneath the mighty power of this great party. (Great applause.)

I am to-day with the progress made by that party. I shall be with it in the future; and as public sentiment becomes stronger and stronger, I trust to be with my party when it has full and entire respect for, and recognizes in the broadest sense all rights to which all mankind are entitled. (Cheers.)—It has already shaken the shackles from the slave, and given him assistance; and where the white man was unfit to govern and had failed in his fidelity, the ballot has been given to the black man. (Applause.)

I repeat to you that I am with my party in its progress, and will ever be found identified with that party into whose hands have been entrusted the destinies of this country, and which, by reason of its thorough knowledge of the great principles lying at the foundation of our fabric of government, has sustained it through the severest trials. When my party progresses further, I will be found with it, if not one step in advance.

I am thankful to the gentleman who drew the resolutions just adopted for declaring that the candidates presented by Pennsylvania are "conservative" and radical," just as the interests of the Government demand.

In conclusion, I will say to you, my friends, that if it should be the pleasure of the National Convention to place your humble servant in nomination with General Gaant, I will take the standard of my party, and, inscribing upon it in letters of living light the great principles upon which our hopes are based, I will unfurl it on the shores of Lake Erie and carry it before the people of Pennsylvania to the Delaware. And if another should be honored with the candidacy, I am ready to carry that banner for him, whoever he may be. I have no pledges or promises to make to you, my fellow-citizens, further than the assurance that I am a Republican in heart and soul.

And now, having acknowledged the distinguished honor which you have awarded me, and given expression to the gratitude of my heart to the people of Pennsylvania for their continued support, I shall say no more. I would be pleased indeed to speak to this assembled multitude, to those earnest people in this city of Philadelphia, where was so much fidelity and loyalty in the days when to be unfaithful was to destroy our Government forever.

WASHINGTON, March 13, 1868.

The galleries of the Senate began to fill up at ten o'clock, and before the Senate went into session, the seats were all occupied.

At precisely 1 o'clock, Mr. Wade said that the hour having arrived for convening the Court of impeachment he would vacate the chair for the Chief Justice of the United States.

As soon as Mr. Chase had taken the chair, the Sergeant-at-Arms made proclamation.

Senator Howard then arose, and said that he presented a resolution, moving that the Secretary of the Senate be required to inform the House of Representatives that the Senate was ready to proceed to the trial of the President of the United States.

The Managers were duly announced to the Senate by the Sergeant-at-Arms of that body, after which they came forward within the bar of the Senate and took the Seats on the left of the presiding officer.

Mr. Chase said that the first business in order would be the reading of the journal of the previous session of the court. The Secretary of the Senate then proceeded to read the journal.

The Board of Managers on the part of the House entered the Senate Chamber fifteen minutes after one o'clock, followed by the members of the House of Representatives.

The Secretary of the Senate then read the certificate of the Sergeant-at Arms of having served the summons upon the President last Saturday at 7 o'clock p. m. Mr. Chase next directed the Sergeant-at-Arms to call the accused, which he did. At this point the counsel for the President, Messrs. Stanberry, Curtis and Nelson, entered, and took seats to the right of the President's office.

After the preliminaries were over, Mr. Stanberry in a nervous, trembling voice, read a written answer from the President naming his attorneys, and asking of the Court a reasonable time to prepare his answer, and asked for forty days' time. Mr. Stanbery contended that to-day was the return day to the summons, and not the trial day. There was not time for the President to prepare an answer to-day, and he denounced the attempt to force a trial now as a trap partaking of the character of star chamber proceedings. He demanded a reasonable time, and they would abide by the result, whatever it might be.

He condemned the haste with which it was sought to force the trial.

Mr. Bingham maintained that the Senate should stand by the rule it had adopted, and not on the threshold of this trial disregard its own solemn acts. He insisted that the eighth rule should be adhered to.

The President's answer reviews the articles preferred against him, and quotes the case of Judge Chase, who was allowed thirty days. But there were only eight articles preferred against him, and the President considered that he was entitled to forty days, to afford him opportunity to prepare his case.

Mr. Chase announced that the application of the accused was refused, and he was ordered to file his answer on March 23.

Mr. Bingham moved that the trial proceed immediately upon the managers filing their replication, which would be the ensuing day. This was objected to, and a vote being taken by yeas and nays, amid the most profound silence, it was lost—25 to 26.

Mr. Roscoe Conkling, offered a resolution that immediately after the replication is filed, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate, the trial shall proceed.

Once more the roll was called, and this time party lines were drawn, and this amendment carried by 40 to 10—Mr. Wade not voting, Messrs. Cragin and Saulsbury being absent. In fifteen minutes thereafter the Senate chamber was empty.

LOCAL & PERSONAL.

☞ Subscribers to The Globe will remember that they can discontinue their subscriptions at any time, and the amount paid on the same (after deducting for the time the paper may have been sent) will be refunded.

To Our Friends.

We propose to make considerable improvement in the appearance of the GLOBE early in the spring, if our friends will do their part by giving us the necessary encouragement. All arrearages can be paid up—and every good subscriber and friend can procure for the GLOBE an additional advance paying subscriber, which would give us support sufficient to enable us to give our patrons a much better paper than we can afford to give now. All our patrons would be gainers by merely using their influence to secure for us the necessary additional help. We cannot complain of the support we now receive from a generous public, but if it was more liberal we could give a better paper for the same money each subscriber now pays. Will our friends and patrons go to work immediately, that we may be able to make arrangements for the improvement at an early day.

Brief Items.

—Easter comes this year on the 12th of April.

—The anniversary of St. Patrick, the Apostle of Ireland, occurs on Tuesday, to-day, the 17th.

—Horse-bills printed in the best style at this office. Owners and keepers will make a note of this.

—The river was on a "high" last week. No serious damage was done. The waters began to subside this morning.

—A Leap Year fancy dress party is to be held this Tuesday evening, in the Morrison House. It promises to be a success.

—An earnest endeavor is being made in many towns of this State to establish Young Men's Christian Associations.

—Millinery and Straw Goods, full line; advertised in this issue by Wm. Krusen, 218 Arch street, Phila. Give him a call.

—The largest and most handsome stock of new styles of Wall Paper ever received in Huntingdon, for sale at Lewis' Book Store. Call and see.

—Attention is invited to Millinery Goods, all kinds, advertisement in this issue, by H. Ward, 103 North Second Street. This is an old and reliable house.

—Another flood has occurred in Johnstown, caused by large masses of ice gorging. The families living in the lower end are obliged to leave their homes.

—Now that the snow is gone, it is thought probable that the State Superintendent will pay our town a visit and locate the site of the Normal School for this district.

—Sunday last was the first day of spring weather that we have had, and the burning heat of the sun prostrated many of our citizens with the fever, on door steps, porches, etc. In the evening we had the first thunder-shower of the season.

—The ice left the Raystown Branch last week and took with it a bridge at Hawns', and the bridge at Entriken's was badly wrecked, rendering it impassable for wagons. This will entail a loss to the county of several thousand dollars.

—The lecture of Father Walls last evening was well attended. His subject was "Faith," and the manner in which he discussed it was entertaining, and his arguments were short but pointed. All present appeared to be satisfied with the gentleman's ability as a speaker.

—On the first page of this number our readers will find an interesting article on the propagation of fish. It is time our people should take some definite action on the subject of the fisheries in this quarter, if they want to propagate the finny tribe with any success.

—Radical Restoration. Its good effects are permanent. It not only restores the color of the hair, but the quantity and natural glossiness. This is said by every one using Mrs. S. A Allen's Improved (new style) Hair Restorer or Dressing, (in one bottle.) Every Druggist sells it. Price one Dollar.

—In a few weeks all our moving population will be pulling up stakes and plodding through mud and mire to their next year's abode. Moving-day has no comparison to any other day of the year; for in our opinion, it will equal wash-day, bake-day, butcher-day, and all the dog-days, and unlucky days combined.

—Rev. E V Gerhart, of Lancaster, has been elected by the Eastern Synod of the German Reformed Church, to fill the chair of Didactic Theology in the Mercersburg Theological Seminary, made vacant by the death of Rev. Dr. Harbaugh. The new Professor will be inaugurated at the next annual meeting of the Synod, at Hagerstown.

☞ Wm. B. Zeigler has just returned from the city, where he has purchased a very large stock of Spring and Summer goods, now in Store, of the various beautiful styles of Ladies dress goods. Summer goods in great variety, and a very large stock of Ladies, Misses, Gents, Boys and Children's Spring and Summer Stockings and Gloves. A very largely increased stock of trimmings, and furnishing goods for Spring and Summer use. 1t.

There was a committee appointed in each township, to receive subscriptions for stock. There being a few shares not taken yet, subscriptions will be received at R. McBurneys at McAlavy's Fort, and C. Kidder's on Stone Creek. There will be a meeting at Donation School House, on Wednesday, March 11th, when able speakers will address the meeting. Barree, March 9, 1868.

Death of a Centenarian.

Mrs. —— Wertz, of this place, died on last Wednesday, aged 100 years and 3 months. She was born on the 25th of December, 1768. The deceased was a native of Germany, and has been a resident of this town for about three years. She had a very retentive memory, and could recite instances that happened in her life from early childhood. We believe she was the oldest inhabitant of this place, and was a member of the Lutheran Church.

To Physicians.

Mr. Speer takes the liberty of requesting physicians to institute an examination of the merits of his Port Grape Wine. The wine is the pure juice of the Port grape, cultivated by him for the purpose, and is now successfully used and prescribed by the physicians in the large cities, and have fully tested it, and who regard it as peculiarly adapted to their mode of practice.

Speer's Wines

Are the pure juice of the grape, and are unexcelled by any native vintage. They contain valuable medicinal properties, and are of intrinsic worth to the invalid and the convalescent, strengthening the weak, and restoring the system to tone and vigor. Sickly persons and females should try them.

MARRIED,

On March 12th, 1868, by Rev. G. W. Zahnizer, Mr. EDWARD T. LIVINGSTON, to WILMINA SILKNITTER, both of Saulsburg, Huntingdon County.

DIED,

In Barree township, on the 10th inst., Mr. GEORGE MILLER, aged 62 years.

At Cassville, on the 11th inst., of apoplexy, Major JACOB CRESSWELL, aged 63 years.

Major C. was a native of Huntingdon county and was widely and favorably known as a man of generous impulses and comprehensive views; of benevolence, principled and hearty; reliable as a friend; wise and much esteemed as a counsellor; a lover of justice and social order; and of a variety and balance of excellences suggestive of the true type of a man. He was a pattern of gentleness in the domestic circle, always easy to be entreated, charitable, deferring to the opinions of others; and with a heart full of sympathy, kindness, forbearance and love. May he rest in peace! W.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE REASON why MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS cures so many different diseases, is because it is the best remedy for a deranged stomach, or Dyspepsia, now known, and because it invigorates the entire system, strengthens the nervous fibres, elevates the standard of all the vital forces, and sustains a most healthful tone of the entire human organism. Medicine that will do this, will cure any disease, for the simple reason, that nature will do the rest.

We guarantee, that no woman or child, however pale or emaciated, can use these Bitters regularly for twenty-one days, without the return of the rosy cheeks and fair complexion characteristic of good health.

HUNTINGDON, PA.

LOST LITTLE ONES.—Looking at each other across the river, across the valley, are the white stones that mark the sleeping places of our dead. The little brown mounds grow more frequent in the village cemeteries, and sad processions have, of late, with mournful frequence, wound up the path to the resting-place where the cradles, now without rockers, lie silent and dumb.

The tiny soul-buds, just softening and swelling in the sunshine of paternal love, just throwing the dimpled tendrils around our necks, and tumbling sweet, broken syllables in our ears, are, with one gust of snow swept away and hidden in the ground. These are the empty chair, the silent playthings, the little dress, limp for the want of the little form, and the crumpled shoes that will be dented no more with pattering feet; all wreathed with sad remembrances of the happy hours when the closed eyes danced with delighted wonder at each fresh sight of the new creation.

Love for the little ones is all the world round the same. The sparrow croons just as tenderly over her "brownies" as the oriole over hers, clothed in velvet and gold. Hearts are inside of us all, and no costly weaving makes love the less or the more. Brown hands can build castles in the air as deftly as white fingers, and all wring with equal sorrow at the wreck.

But think how full of pleasantness the little lives have been; the unfinished ring of their tiny years have been plaited all around with love and blossoms, the scent of the lilacs and lillies. The memory of caressings that in after years we forget, these dear ones carry with them to heaven. Banished from one paradise to another—from this, where shadows sometimes drive away smiles, to where there are no shadows any more.

Sad it is to die young. Is it not sadder to die old?

How many there are that have babies that never grow up, that live life-long in the memory as the little ones that never wandered till we laid them quietly down beneath that green coverlid that needeth smoothing and softening no more.

Upon that mysterious, unknown sea that rolls all around the world, how many little souls daily drift out! Mothers in every land are crying on the shore, of their great loss, in anguish and tears. But yonder invisible hands welcome the little earth-orphans, and celestial voices shout in glad delight that another angel is born in heaven!

A PERFECT TIME-PIECE FOR ONE DOLLAR.

Let every Housekeeper, Farmer, Mechanic, and Traveler buy our

SOLAR WATCH,

Or Perpetual Portable Sun-Dial.

Warranted to keep True Time for every Day of the Year

This valuable instrument, which is warranted by us to give the true time of day throughout the year, is constructed on strictly scientific principles, being based on astronomical tables and calculations, and affording the truest measure of time which human ingenuity and skill can devise, exceeding in accuracy and reliability the most perfect chronometers, whilst the low price at which we offer it to the public places it within the reach of all. Its portability makes it convenient for travelers, and to every farmer or householder it must prove invaluable to regulate their clocks and watches by the most infallible test recognized by science.

The mode of using the "Solar Watch" is the simplest that can be devised. After screwing the Style or Gnomen in its place in the moveable brass bend and setting it directly over the straight line corresponding to the date, or that nearest to it on the cylinder, the instrument is placed upright in the sunshine in such a position as will throw the shadow of the Style directly upon the line under it. After placing the plumb-line, by means of its brass attachment, at a right angle with and to the left of the Style, in order to set the cylinder perfectly level, the point where the extremity of the shadow falls, and its distance from any of the wavy or cross lines exhibiting the morning and corresponding afternoon hours, will indicate the true time of day.

The whole apparatus, consisting of a Cylinder and Diagram, moveable Brass Head, Style, Plumb line, and Brass attachment for the same, neatly put up in compact boxes, is sold by us at the incredibly low price of ONE DOLLAR.
